Breaking the Spell

Stork, Jane

'Breaking the Spell' is Jane Stork's extraordinary life story. Equally moving and disturbing, it chronicles the rise and fall of the religion Rajneeshism and the Rolls Royce guru, and Jane's part in the events that led to its collapse. Embarking on the familiar path of marriage and raising children, Jane's semblance of a normal life began to unravel as she entered her 30s. She sought answers at a meditation centre, and quickly became devoted to the Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. Jane moved her family to a Bhagwan-created city in Oregon, USA, and it was there that Bhagwan's behaviour became increasingly bizarre. For Jane, what started out as a journey seeking spiritual enlightenment began to descend into darkness as she sacrificed her marriage and children, and eventually - through a monstrous act of attempted murder - her freedom.

Hard Road

Webcke, Shane

Shane Webcke gives us the inside running on the dramatic 2006 finals series, including the controversial coaching strategy employed by the Brisbane Broncos in the lead-up to their 2006 NRL Premiership triumph. From the highs of that euphoric victory to the lows of getting lost in the post-retirement maze, Webcke's unflinchingly honest and down-to-earth views are both revealing and insightful. Webcke then tackles the game of rugby league in Australia and shows no mercy. His sometimes brutal honesty on everything from Wayne Bennett quitting the Broncos and players' drunken behaviour, to the inclusion of a disgraced Joey Johns in the Team of the Century and rugby league's rivalry with rugby union, will send shockwaves through rugby league's administrators, the media, the players and the game's fan base.

Love in the Age of Drought

Higgins, Fiona

When Fiona Collins meets Stuart Higgins at a leadership conference in Melbourne, she isn't looking for a relationship, let alone the upheaval of falling in love with an intelligent, eco-friendly cotton farmer from south-east Queensland. But that's exactly what's on the cards. When Stuart sends Fiona a pair of crusty old boots and a declaration of love 16 days into their fledgling relationship, it's the start of a love story that endures - in spite of distance, the strain of Stuart's cotton farm entering its fourth year of drought, and Fiona's issues with commitment. 'Love in the Age of Drought' is a delightful fish-out-of-water story about the city/rural culture clash overcome by the course of true love. It's also a moving tribute to country Australia's strength and capacity for survival and renewal amid a drought that won't be broken.

Gardens of Eden

Kerr Forsyth, Holly

'Gardens of Eden' is not simply a stroll through the world's most beautiful gardens; it is a romp through history and an armchair ride around the world. From the glorious paradise gardens of ancient Persia and the open spaces of Australia to the restrained gardens of Italy and the Buddhist-inspired landscapes of China and Japan, this lavishly illustrated book takes the reader on a colourful journey through more than 50 of the world's loveliest gardens.

Beersheba

Daley, Paul

The Battle of Beersheba, a redeeming win for the ANZACs who lost at Gallipoli, has slipped through the cracks of Australia's historical consciousness. The sunset charge by 800 ANZACs mounted on horses defeated 400 Turks, captured Beersheba, and led to the liberation of Jerusalem and the fall of the Ottoman Empire. It is the victory that paved the way for the establishment of Israel 60 years ago. And yet, Beersheba is not a pilgrimage site, even though the Turkish trenches are intact, shrapnel can still be found within, and the ancient Bedouin camps, through which the horseman cantered, are still there. In an evocative narrative in the vein of Les Carlyon's masterpiece, 'Gallipoli', 'Beersheba' will tell a story about a place and its players that is long overdue for acknowledgement.

Best Australian Political Writing 2009, The

Beecher, Eric

'The Best Australian Political Writing 2009' brings together the most incisive and entertaining analysis of the past year in politics. Edited by Crikey Publisher Eric Beecher, this collection includes razor-sharp commentary on Labor's first year in power; the rise and rise of Malcolm Turnbull, the Apology, the controversy over the Henson case, climate change and the economic crisis, among others. Here, some of our leading commentators dissect the names, the events and the ideas that shaped an historic year.

Longest Siege, The

Lyman, Robert

Beginning on 10th April 1941, and lasting for 240 days, the siege of Tobruk is a mesmerising tale of human endurance and heroism. It is an epic story of extraordinary resilience as the Libyan port's 24,000 defenders met increasingly desperate attempts by Rommel's Panzer divisions to break through the hurriedly thrown-up defences. It was a battle of bayonets and grenades against tanks, of David versus Goliath. The eventual allied victory came against overwhelming odds, plus the morale sapping knowledge that the defenders were surrounded on one side by the sea, and on the other by Hitler's men and machines. Tobruk was defended in the main by the Australian 9th Division, followed by the British 70th Infantry Division who then linked up with the advancing 8th Army.

Bone Man of Kokoda, The

Happell, Charles

Kokichi Nishimura was a member of the Japanese Imperial Army. In 1942 he fought along every foot of Kokoda as the Japanese attempted to take Port Moresby. He was the only man from his company to survive the campaign, and made a promise that one day he would return to his comrades and bring them home for proper burial. After the war, Nishimura prospered. But under the surface, the driving ambition of his life was to fulfil his promise. In 1979, he shocked his family by returning to New Guinea to search for the remains of Japanese soldiers. For the next 25 years, Nishimura lived alone along the Kokoda Track. Armed only with a metal detector, a mattock and a shovel, he searched for his dead comrades. His story is an incredible adventure that gives us a radically different viewpoint on a battle that has become part of our national myth.

On the Home Front

Darian-Smith, Kate

For the people of Melbourne, the years of World War II were a time of social dislocation and increased government interference in all aspects of their daily lives. This study examines the experiences of families living at a time when food and clothing were rationed and adequate housing was hard to come by. It is the story of their work, leisure and relationships, and of their fear of a Japanese invasion. As women left their homes to replace men in factories and offices, their traditional role as mothers and wives was challenged. The presence of thousands of American soldiers raised questions about Australian nationalism and identity. And the "carnival spirit" of many of those left at home focused attention on the moral issues of drunkenness, gambling and sexuality.

Khomeini's Ghost

Coughlin, Con

On 1 February 1979, Ayatollah Khomeini returned to Iran to a tumultuous welcome, and the Iranian revolution that he masterminded has become one of the defining moments of the modern age. Today the challenge of radical Islam represents the greatest threat to world peace seen since the darkest days of the Cold War, and the legacy of Khomeini's Islamic Revolution lies at the heart of many of the world's most intractable conflicts.

'Khomeini's Ghost' is the definitive biographical account of how an impoverished young student from a remote area of southern Iran came to be the political and the spiritual leader of his country.

Kings Way

Cubriilo, Harvey and Stamer

'Kings Way' is a comprehensive account of the first decade of the graffiti writing subculture in Melbourne, Australia.

Beginning in 1983 as the New York break-dancing craze was sweeping the globe, 'Kings Way' tells the story of the development of a hardcore underground scene of local "writers" and their commitment to "getting up". Using the city's walls and trains as their canvas, these writers pioneered the elaborate spray-paint murals that now dominate Melbourne's cityscape. This volume illustrates the rapid changes in styles in these early years, as Melbourne's graffiti changed from simple scrawls to ornamentalised murals of astonishing complexity.

Please Don't Kill Mommy!

Weinstein, Fannie

On November 4, 1990, Tim Boczkowski phoned 911 to report his wife Elaine lying motionless in the bathtub. Although detectives suspected Tim had murdered his wife after a quarrel, there were no eyewitnesses to the crime, and Tim went free to pick up the pieces of his life. Four years later Tim's second wife died under similar circumstances. Immediately, his past tightened around him like a noose, and some of those who knew him best began to believe that the mild-mannered, religiously devout Boczkowski was really a madman who killed his wives with his bare hands. But Tim Boczkowski's worst crime of all may have been committed against this own children: taking away their mother not once, but twice...
